

addendum:

The preferred end state would be snuffing out jihadist terrorism whenever it comes in contact with officialdom. Religion cannot flourish in violence, it can only diminish.

I actually invented a religion, it is an official state-sanctioned religion in England. I invented both "The Jedi" and "The Force" for Steve Spielberg and The Star War project in 1972. It's akin to Asimov's Mule books only with fewer contortions, what? Relax. I'm a Southern Baptist. "You do not know THE POWER of The Dark Side" was contributed by none other than the last president of the Brookings Institution, sorry can't think of his name. He's Bill Clinton's friend, Strobe Talbot. That's it.

I also invented the modern meaning of the word "INCLUSIVE" from an old math term and we should spread that word, too. I know these "claims" sound like a lot to normal ears. They sounded pretty weird to my ears at the time, too. You should have seen Spielberg when I told him "May the Force be with you!" I was very serious. I told him he was on a mission from God but that he was up to the challenge. I had the 1972 word a day calendar from which I fed him lines that appeared in all sorts of films. "Your heart is free! Have the courage to follow it!" That's probably more than you guys want to know, so I'll let my submission speak for itself. I found a way to stop "feelings of jihad". I've elsewhere even explained how they develop, which you should also be interested in. Some other papers on my page:
www.independent.academia.edu/BubbaNicholson