

Find'em Scent Kit

Scent Solutions, LLC

Provide first responders the greatest gift imaginable during the first chaotic minutes of discovering that someone has either wandered away, or a child has gone missing.

Find'em Scent Kit provides peace-of-mind, knowing there is an uncontaminated personal scent sample ready for K-9 Search & Rescue teams... should that become necessary

Find'em Scent Kit was developed by Dr. Coby Webb, and Officer Travis Shows

The Find'em Scent Kit has everything you need to scientifically collect and store human scent, so when Search & Rescue and/or Police arrive, there is something specific to call out for locating that person. The Kit is unique and trustworthy, because of its thoughtful design by two, experienced, Search & Rescue Police Officers, with a passion to locate someone missing – rather than identify someone found.

Scent Articles have long been used as a viable and dependable tool for K-9 Search & Rescue teams deployed to locate someone missing, but there are consistent challenges finding a scent sample that hasn't been cross-contaminated.

"We want to educate the public about personal scent, so Search & Rescue can find a missing person quickly..."

Dr. Coby Webb

Dr. Coby Webb is a Lieutenant with a Southern California Law Enforcement Agency. She has more than 17 years as a K-9 Handler, is Board Member, National Police Bloodhound Association, a Certified Instructor/Certifier of K-9 tracking and trailing, and a Recognized Court Expert on tracking and trailing. Officer Travis Shows is an active duty police officer for a Southern California agency, as well as a K-9 Search & Rescue Officer. He has worked with trained bloodhounds to scent discriminate humans based on a person's individual scent. In recent years, Travis and his K-9 Bloodhounds were requested to assist on some of the highest profile manhunts in California's history.
